DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. The declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed April 6, 2005 is sufficient to overcome the rejection of claims 1-3 based upon U.S. Patent No. 6,794,077.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. patent No. 5,503,944 (Meyer).

Meyer discloses a passive water management system (col. 2, ll. 12-14) comprising at least one fuel cell including an anode fuel flow plate 2', oxidant fuel flow plate 2 defined adjacent opposed sides of electrolyte 8, an anode water management flow field defined adjacent the anode fuel flow field 2' including at least one fuel path between a fuel inlet and fuel outlet for directing the fuel to flow adjacent to the electrolyte from the fuel inlet through the fuel path to the fuel outlet; a cooler plate secured in heat exchange relationship with the fuel cell for removing heat from the fuel cell, the cooler plate including at least one coolant path 36 defined between a coolant inlet and coolant outlet for directing a cooling fluid to flow from the coolant inlet through the coolant path to the coolant outlet, wherein a width of the fuel path is about the same as a width of the coolant path 36 (cross sectional view in Fig. 3) where the paths are closest to each other and the fuel path substantially overlies the coolant path 36 extending between the inlets and outlets to minimize temperature differential between the fuel flowing through the fuel path (Fig. 3 as applied to claim 1).

The system further comprises plural fuel paths extending between the inlet and outlet of about the same width and substantially overlying a corresponding number of coolant paths 36 (Fig. 3 as applied to claim 2).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Meyer in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,322,915 (Collins).

The teachings of claim 1 have been discussed above and are incorporated herein.

The difference between claim 3 and Meyer is that Meyer does not teach of the coolant loop and pressure control means.

Collins discloses providing a coolant loop 42 and pressure control means 44 to the coolant system in a fuel cell. (Fig. 1).

The motivation for using the coolant loop and coolant pressure control as taught by Collins is that it provides improved humidification control of the fuel cell system.

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the claimed invention was made to modify the teachings of Meyer by using the coolant loop and coolant pressure control as taught by Collins since it would have provided improved humidification control of the fuel cell system.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
